Dear Sir,

It has been a time of some change for the PCC and the newspaper industry, and there are currently a number of challenges for media regulators posed by new technologies and convergence. We think that the PCC's structure and approach – flexibility, independence, the co-operation of the regulated industry, and the application of principles rather than prescriptive rules - are well suited to the new landscape.

It struck me that it has been a while since we met up. I would therefore welcome the opportunity to brief you on these and other issues, and also to hear your own views. I know you will be very busy but I wonder whether you – and any of your advisers or shadow ministerial colleagues, if appropriate – might be free some time in the autumn for a private dinner with me and the Commission's Director, Tim Toulmin. It would be excellent if someone from your office could be in touch with my PA, Kim Baxter, to sort out a suitable date. Her direct line is 020 7438 1242 and her e-mail address is kim.baxter@pcc.org.uk.

With kind regards.

*Yours etc,
Christopher Meyer*
